

Adjunct Faculty for Online Master of Public Health (MPH) Program

We welcome candidates to develop courses and teach in our growing online Master of Public Health (MPH) program. We are particularly interested in faculty with expertise in Biostatistics, Community Health, Health Systems Strengthening, and Health Policy. Available courses may include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Biostatistics for Public Health
- Monitoring & Evaluating Health Programs
- Global Healthcare Delivery
- Public Health & Healthcare Law

This is a remote position. Courses are generally 8 weeks and delivered asynchronously; however, candidates will be required to offer a minimum of 1 hour weekly synchronous sessions for each course they teach.

The ideal candidate will have:

- a doctorate in public health or other relevant field or a master's degree combined with significant work experience related to public health
- a demonstrated mature Christian faith, strong commitment to the Christian mission of the College, and agreement with the school's Statement of Faith
- a passion for teaching and mentoring students
- experience teaching in higher education with preference given to those who have taught in online environments.

Interested applicants must submit a Curriculum Vita (CV) and a letter of application addressing their fit with the Christian mission of Gordon College and the position listed above.

Hiring is ~$1,050 per credit/semester depending on experience and class enrollment.

To apply, please send materials directly to the MPH Program Director, Dr. Heather Sipsma, at heather.sipsma@gordon.edu.

Gordon College is an equal opportunity employer. Qualified applicants for employment will receive consideration without discrimination on the basis of race, color, gender, age, national origin, or disability.
